the first expenditure in the building of a new conduit from Cold Water canyon in the new reservoir completed several weeks ago. From the reservoir the conduit will be extended down Twenty-second street or Twenty-third street to Quincy avenue, which will greatly increase the water supply to the distributive system. When this is done, then the matter of making the extensions for which the taxpayers have been pleading for months will be begun. In bonding the city for $100,000 the city administration does not contemplate plunging the city into further debt. It has been figured out by the present administration, and, in fact, is guaranteed to the taxpayers that within four years after the improvements, desired on the vaterworks system are completed the second bonded debt of $100,000 entered into for that purpose will be easily paid off in installments of $55,000 each year from the actual profits of the improved water system.

OGDEN, Aug. 17.—Can a man of normal habits sleep soundly for hours under the constant dripping of a lawn sprinkler? Judge J. D. Marphy of the police court does not thirk so, and is inclined to the helief that Carl Smith, who accomplished this feat must have been temporarily deranged. Patrolman Jerry Kellher, who arrested the human sponge after he had lain for hours under the spray, told the court that Smith was drunk Smith denies positively that he had been drinking: moreover, he says that he never indulges in intoxicating drinks of any kind. To prove this he says his home is in Kansas City, from which place he came west to look for work.

Not being entirely satisfied that Smith was drunk as the time of his arrest, Judge Murphy continued the case for further investigation tomorrow morning.

OGDEN, Aug. 17.—Alleging that Fred G. Elliott has appropriated funds belonging to a partnership in which he was interested and applied them to his personal use. John C. Barnard is seeking an accounting in a complaint filed this afternoon in the district court.

Barnard says that he and Elliott entered into a partnership for the purpose of conducting a livestock business at Bassett, Neb., November 25, 1905. Elliott had the management of the business and according to his partner, misappiled some of the partnership funds. The plaintiff asks the court to dissolve the partnership, sell the property and compel Elliott to make an accounting of the moneys he has collected.

Yeserday I was just thinking of asking you to allow me to reply, through your columns that if the American party notices the execrable condition of the county road in this part of Bingham about election time. It is more than the Republican board of county commissioners does at any time, when, behold, the county auto, carrying Chairman Mackay, the county road supervisor. Sheriff Sharp and several others, hove in sight. They only touched Upper Bingham, of course, because the automobile that can run through to the upper line and then run back again with any kind of safety is yet to be invented.

And, anyway, what is the use of Sheriff Sharp and the gang coming here in the middle of the dog days to look after their fences (incidentally), when a strong wind may blow them down before strong wind may blow them down before the primaries. In this connection, Me-Donald, Bingham's noted weather prophet, predicts that cyclones are liable to prevail in this cangon this fall until after the election.
